The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, OCT 18, 1879.

GEN. GRANT AND THE PRESIDENCY.

While General Grant was a guest of the city of Portland it was not fit that a discussion or controversy should take place here over matters with which officials politicians have been too eager to connect his name, and therefore THE OREGONIAN said nothing about the statements of ex Senator Mitchell concerning Gen. Grant as a candidate for the next presidency, which were telegraphed here from Washington City a few days since, nor did it take issue with democratic journals which embraced the occasion to say, or to intimate more or less plainly that Gen. Grant would undoubtedly be a candidate for the presidency in 1880. But it seems proper now to present some considerations on a subject which was needlessly obtruded during his stay. It should be borne in mind that Gen. Grant has neither said nor done anything which indicates a desire on his part to be president again. If he has not spoken on the subject, it is for the good and sufficient reason that the honor has not yet been tendered him by any representative body of his fellow citizens, and he should neither decline nor accept at the solicitation of the gushing interviewer or scheming politician. Such remarks as he has made in an incidental way to his intimate friends have indicated that he feels he has had as much of the honor as any citizen ought to seek, rather than that he is looking for the position and its responsibilities again. Gen. Grant was among us as an eminent citizen, and not as a politician. He has held the highest offices, military and civil, that the country has had to bestow, and his fame has gone to the ends of the earth. It was proper that he should be received among us with demonstrations which would indicate an appreciation of his great services and an acknowledgment of his fame; but it was quite unseemly that there should be any suggestion of political scheming at such a time, or any effort to turn a spontaneous tribute tendered by the people without distinction of party, to political or partisan account.

Ex-Senator Mitchell, if he has been reported correctly, said that "the Pacific coast is wild and solid for Grant," and that he found much the same sentiment in the middle and eastern states through which he had recently passed. If we were requested to account for these views we should say that Mr. Mitchell's mind has acquired a political bent which leads him to connect nearly every kind of demonstration with political aims and movements. No close observer of public sentiment here would say that the people are "wild and solid" for Grant for president. To begin with, nearly half the people, that is the democratic party of the Pacific coast, would not vote for him in any event. Their reason is not one that would detract in any way from Gen. Grant's great and merited fame, but is based simply on the fact that they are democrats, that they believe in a different theory of the government from that held by Gen. Grant, and desire a national administration that will express their views and give them the offices. As for the republicans, though all of them hold Gen. Grant in high esteem because of his great services and his approved fidelity to the political principles which lie at the foundation of national unity, justice and peace, there are few who are making a demand for his nomination for the presidency, and none of judgment who consider him, or any man, necessary to the salvation of the country or the life of the republican party. So far from there being a general demand among republicans of the Pacific coast for his nomination, there is no body of public opinion here which has organized itself in that direction. Nine of every ten republicans to whom the matter is mooted and express the conviction that it would be better not to think of making Gen. Grant president again. For this opinion there are many reasons. Gen. Grant is our most eminent citizen. His fame belongs to the republic. He has had highest honors. He occupies now a position above the intrigue and strife of parties. It would be neither just to his fame nor honorable to the country to ask him to come down from this position and plunge into a contest of partisanship. Moreover, the tradition of the country as to two terms only has become a part of the unwritten constitution which it is unnecessary to violate, which many would reluctantly consent to violate, and which some would not consent to violate at all. For the talk that a third term would be the beginning of a dictatorship is empty and absurd. The people have confidence in their institutions and know how to protect themselves against usurpation. At the same time there is among discreet citizens a conservative habit or tendency of mind, which objects to innovation unless necessity be shown for it or good be apparent in it; and a third term would be an innovation for which as yet no sufficiently good reason appears.

It is questionable whether Gen. Grant would in any contingency or emergency now or at all probable accept a nomination. But it is certain that he would not enter into any strife for it, nor accept it if it came in any other way than as a free, spontaneous and unanimous offering. He can receive no additional honors from office. Another contest would, in fact, rather detract from the fullness of his fame. He would probably be elected, since the demand for national economy, peace, and equal rights, of which his name would stand as a symbol, would carry him triumphantly over all opposition. And yet the republican party is really stronger in itself through devotion to these principles than in the name of General Grant, or of all its leaders combined. Again, the nomination of Gen Grant would open upon him a fierce war of personal detraction; the mistakes of his former administrations, which in many cases were serious enough, would be brought out again by an acrimonious press and presented with every circumstance of detail and exaggeration that a venomous partisan hostility could invent; while a class of republicans, by no means small, who left the party through various causes while Grant was president, but who have now returned to co-operate with it as readily as ever, would almost certainly be again repelled if he were again the candidate of the party. It is not necessary to inquire into the propriety of their motives, which in some instances doubtless would be found selfish and unworthy enough. But it is proper to take into consideration the fact. To sum up, it may be safely said that there has been as yet no demand from the masses of the people for another term for General Grant and the innovation it would introduce. Politicians, are, however, making an effort to start a "boom" and help it along, for what purposes those who know the ways of politicians may easily divine for themselves.

Secretary Sherman in a recent speech expressed gratification that, though the treasury had to pay eight million dollars of pension arrears in September, yet it was able to reduce the public debt by a half million dollars. From this fine showing and the rising tide of business the conclusion was drawn that if congress do not lay any burdens on the treasury he will be able to reduce the debt fifty millions next year. But that is a mighty doubtful "if." When congress shall meet in December, and find that the treasury was not only able to pay off the twenty-five millions of pension arrears imposed last winter, but [illegible] remains in the treasury, [illegible] will be a democratic congress, resolved and [illegible] specially sure to help the Sherman [illegible] It will be the same old set of democrats who were so ready to vote money away for all sorts of jobs and did vote away large sums, though they were then somewhat restrained by hard times. But they will not be restrained at all by that cry this winter. They will laugh at the warnings of those who showed the dangers of the period of extravagance, and pointing to the course of events as their vindication will be inclined to launch into new extravagances. This is the way they will endeavor to court the favor of the various influences and classes of society. There is much to fear from next winter's congress, on the score of extravagance. If the appropriations were mainly for needed public improvements it would be less matter. But really necessary appropriations will be scaled in order that millions may be squandered on jobs deemed necessary for presidential making.

The Standard after having repeatedly complained during the past two or three years of the inefficiency of George A. Steel, late postal agent, now takes occasion to compliment him highly as an officer who did his whole duty. This, however, is done for the sake of a fling at THE OREGONIAN. A few days since, the paper said that in order to get efficient service out here, which had not been had for some years, a postal agent had been sent from the east. This is pronounced by the Standard an "unjust and uncalled for attack" on the late postal agent. How then, are we to characterize the numerous statements concerning the late agent, far severer than that of THE OREGONIAN, which have appeared in the columns of the Standard? We suppose they were entirely Pickwickian, as what that paper says never means anything. That Mr. Steel should have been complimented by the department on tendering his resignation is not strange. It was the one act of his service that had highest approval of the department.

Prof. S M Tracy of the agricultural college of Missouri reports on experiments made there with 41 varieties of winter wheat. Of course observations made in that locality would be of little value here, where all the conditions of wheat growing are so different. The fame of our wheat has gone abroad, but efforts to reproduce this wheat in any of the eastern or middle states invariably fail. Our finest wheat in about two years deteriorates to the grade of ordinary eastern wheat, or even below it. Prof. Tracy reports that the Oregon varieties have all been discarded in the experiments of the Missouri agricultural college, except the Oregon club. If people of Missouri or any where beyond the backbone of the continent want to raise good wheat they must come out here where they can get the climate and soil for it. Wheat equal to that produced in the Pacific northwest can be obtained nowhere else on the continent.

Among the checks sent out from the treasury in payment of the last quarterly interest on the United States 4 per cent. loan was one of $50,000 to the order of Wm H. Vanderbilt, being the quarterly interest on $5,000,000 United States 4 per cent. bonds registered in his name. Mr. J. O. Flood, of the firm of Flood & O'Brien, San Francisco, also has $5,000,000 registered stock of the 6 per cents, bonds, which have not yet been called. These gentlemen are the two largest single holders of registered bonds.

The republicans will elect a senator from Ohio in place of Thurman, democrat, whose term will expire in March, 1881. The term of a democratic senator for each of the following states will also expire in 1881, namely, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. The republicans should elect, and probably will elect, every one of these. Should they do so the two parties in the senate would be a tie after March 4, 1881.

Blondin is performing in the old exhibition building at Vienna. He refuses to have a net spread beneath him. He is followed, says the London World, everywhere by a Mr Thompson, who has made a bet of £5,000 that the hero of Niagara will fall from the rope and be killed or he attains the age of sixty. Five years more and the cruel wager will be decided one way or the other, for Blondin is already fifty-five.

Manufacturers in the southern states now work up about 200,000 bales of cotton a year, and the amount consumed is rapidly increasing. If they would push the cotton mills and other mills, and think less about political "solidity," they would work wonders in a short time.

Queen Victoria has intimated that the sale of photographs of the so-called fashionable beauties in England has her severe displeasure. Her majesty probably wants a monopoly of the photograph market, and finds she cannot compete with the beauties.

It is not probable that anybody connected with the Mechanics' Fair wished to be understood as favoring the use of whisky as a beverage, but merely thought with the late Artemus Ward, that "a little for mechanical purposes might taste good."

Gen. Merritt telegraphs that great quantities of the best kind of arms and ammunition for the same have been sold by ranchmen to the Ute Indians. This is what makes the war a serious business.

POWER OF ATTORNEY.—There was filed for record to-day in the county clerk's office a power of attorney to assign, release or sell, from time to time in the usual course of business, any mortgages which appear in the various county records as belonging to the Oregon and Washington Trust Investment Company of Scotland. The following are the exact words as copied from the record: "The said company hereby constitutes and appoints William Reid manager, and Robert B. Tate assistant manager and assistant secretary of the said William Reid, and lawful attorneys of record for the purposes aforesaid." The power bears the signature of the O. & W. T. I. Co., in behalf of Dundee, and of the state of Oregon, and the United States of America, and the United States of America, and is witnessed, with wheat sheaves contained in the shield of Oregon. The power is executed by two directors and secretary of the company, dated and acknowledged at Dundee, the 17th consul, 17 Sept., 1879, as the act and deed of the company, and applies to the state of Oregon and the territory of Washington, and all counties therein.

[illegible] NOT IN TROUBLE.—A San Francisco dispatch of the 14th inst., contains the following facetious paragraph: "George [illegible], familiarly known as commodore, erstwhile professional hero of Barnum's show, was arrested yesterday for breach of the peace, that the redoubtable commodore, some sort of a show, character [illegible] Third street, and Mrs. Rebecca [illegible], near by, does seriously object to the complaint of, certain weird and unearthly noises, and sounds of revelry, issuing therefrom. In consequence, the arrest of the diminutive [illegible] was obliged to put up the [illegible] of great credit for the bravery [illegible] in making his arrest. Honor to whom honor is due!"

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

WASHINGTON Oct 18—12 55 A M—For Central and North Pacific coast regions clear or fair weather

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC

INTERVIEW WITH J C AINSWORTH THE MANAGING DIRECTOR

On Saturday J C Ainsworth President of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company and the Managing Director of the Northern Pacific Railroad for the Pacific Division arrived in San Francisco and was interviewed by a reporter of the Chronicle at the rooms of the Baldwin upon land and railroad matters He represented that there was at present a great influx of emigrants upon the lands contiguous to the different branches of the Northern Pacific The quality of the land was good and settlements and villages were springing up rapidly This was undoubtedly owing to the fact that the land was held in small tracts so that speculation was impossible The area for wheat comprised a tract of some 250 miles in width by 350 in length The Oregon Steam Navigation Company next year would commence to build a number of branch roads into Eastern Washington Territory The Northern Pacific would build about 140 miles of road during the next year This would throw open immense tracts of country to settler They were now hard at work to close the gap between the mouth of Snake river and Pendd'Oreille lake a distance of some 269 miles about 200 men being employed on the work A few years ago there were no means of rapid transportation for the first crop of wheat and now they were able to handle 500 tons a day

NO LARGE TRACTS OF LAND

In answer to a question if it was considered desirable that the Government should exchange alternate sections with the railroad company, in order to allow the land to be owned in larger tracts, Mr Ainsworth replied "No, sir; by no means. Land should not be owned in large tracts by anybody We do not wish any such exchange, but hold our land simply for settlers. I think we have been very liberal in our policy in this respect, and as a consequence we have built up and are now rapidly increasing an extensive local trade. In four years I think the Northern Pacific will be completed, as they are working energetically east and west from the Missouri river

Reporter—What influence will the completion of the road have upon the Central Pacific?

Mr. Ainsworth—Within a short time the Central Pacific Company has looked upon us as powerful, but now they understand that the completion of our road is only a question of time. We are in no straw-swallower to secure control since the original bondholders have become the actual owners, and I think that the Central Pacific, although for a few years it may still retain its sharp, grasping policy of exactions, will soon inaugurate a policy of moderation if not of conciliation The completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad is of the utmost importance to the coast, as it will do more than any possible legislative enactment to regulate fares and freight. As we pass through no country we shall have a wide extent of local trade, and therefore be able to cut far under the rates of the Central Pacific But we have so far been upon a very harmonious footing with the Central Pacific, and do not at all wish to get into any conflict with them

Reporter—Has the labor question assumed any importance in Oregon?

TOO DEPENDENT UPON OTHERS

Mr. Ainsworth—It has, but not nearly as much as here in San Francisco. I believe that labor should be protected and considered in every reasonable way. The real remedy for all dissatisfaction and discontent lies in a reversion of the people to engage in agricultural pursuits This would make them independent in a few years, and it always seems to me as if your boot-jack-makers were too ready to exert the unreasonable frame of mind, and rather desire to remain in a state of dependence, allowing other people to provide them with work.

Mr. Ainsworth further said that he did not feel himself competent to give any opinion on the political issues of the day. He saw no reason enough to our institutions if the Government should fall into the hands of the Democratic party, although he personally rather favored the Republicans. If Grant were nominated, he would certainly carry Oregon by an overwhelming majority, as the people looked upon him as a guarantee for the maintenance of the existing order of things. General Grant would receive a most enthusiastic welcome upon his arrival in Oregon. He himself had taken an active part in the preparations.

Mr. Riggs' saw-mill on the Luckiamute was destroyed by fire last week. The loss is estimated at $1500 and $2000.

All accounts agree in reporting a decided rise in the English and San Francisco wheat markets with great excitement in Chicago when the highest figure recorded which has been reached since last September. Freights on this coast are also advancing as fast producers on this coast will hardly realize the full advantage of the "boom" in the market in wheat.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 17.—A leading grain circular says that the markets this week have been wild and excited in all leading centers, and extensive transactions have taken place in all positions for consumption requirements and shipment, and the passage, at rates two shillings per quarter over quotations of a few days ago on spot. Corn suddenly advanced 4d to 5d per qr. Millers have taken wheat of all descriptions freely at an advance of 6d on Tuesday's quotations. A number of parcels were purchased for home delivery, and several cargoes of California passage were taken at a similar improvement.
